Anybody who owns an automobile has had a personal experience or knows somebody who has needed the services of a body and fender collision repair service. There are an abundance of such independent companies in any town or U.S. city.

However, the organizers of the MCCUI have found no evidence of any such company in existence that specializes in motorcycle collision repair.

When the concept of collision repair facilities that specialize in motorcycles was first presented to Geico by Mr. Mike Cavinder, the interest level was phenomenally high. One of the first questions to be asked of Cavinder was: "Is this a single location or can this be nationwide?"
